

When State of Play meets Midsomer Murders...

Welcome to Allensbury - a small town with a deadly reputation

"I've almost found what I need. Keep this notebook safe, don't read it and I'll call you in a few days. Don't tell anyone about this. That's very important. Don't tell anyone"

News reporter Dan Sullivan receives a mysterious package just days after a woman is found dead at the derelict Old Manor Hall in Allensbury.

Inside is a letter and an old notebook that could provide the location of the missing treasure of Simeon Burns, former owner of the hall.

A charity treasure hunt, celebrating the 200th anniversary of Allensbury Museum, is already underway. But soon another person is murdered, seemingly connected to the treasure, which has been missing for centuries.

Solving modern-day murders is one thing, but a 160-year-old cold case could be beyond Dan's skills.

With his friends Ed and Emma on hand, Dan soon finds there's more to the story than meets the eye, and treasure isn't the only thing at stake.

Will they be able to find the treasure and the killer before anyone else gets hurt?

Purchasing details:

Publisher: Readthrough Press

Available in ebook, print and audio book format from all good retailers including Gardners, Overdrive, BorrowBook, Amazon, Kobo and Barnes & Noble.

ISBN:

eBook: 978-1-913778-19-4

Paperback: 978-1-913778-20-0

Size: 8.5" x 5.5"

About the author

LM Milford is a crime fiction author who writes the Allensbury Mysteries, covering the exploits of local newspaper reporter Dan Sullivan.

A former newspaper journalist, Lynne's experience has influenced her work, although her stories were never as exciting as Dan's.

Lynne was born and brought up in the north-east of England, and now lives in Yarm, North Yorkshire, with her husband and far too many books. She loves cooking, baking and holidays in Spain. She's partial to a good red wine and plates of cheese.

Contact Lynne: lynne@lmmilford.com

www.lmmilford.com/my-books